Milton Keynes Council’s suggested change, 10th July 2012, 13.45pm.

17.5 These monitoring arrangements will allow the Council to react to changing circumstances. The Core Strategy is a flexible document and may not require wholesale review if circumstances or the housing strategy changes. Various components of the LDF can be adjusted to reflect conditions and events. For example, if a review of central government policy required an increase in housing numbers then this could be carried out through a review of the Site Allocations DPD, or an Area Action Plan, with an appropriate Sustainability Appraisal. The Core Strategy is a flexible document and may require review should monitoring show the need or if, for example, the housing strategy changes. The Local Development Scheme sets out the future planning policy work to reflect conditions and events. For example, if the planned rate of housing and/or employment development changes then the Plan:MK or subsequent planning policy documents will consider the need for additional housing and/or employment land and the timescale for development.
