

We're making Bletchley better

Improvement works to start Spring 2016

www.milton-keynes.gov.uk/fixingthelinks

What's happening?

The Council will improve the pedestrian/cyclist links between Bletchley Rail Station and the town centre by:

- removing a section of the Locke Road retaining wall to 'open up' pedestrian access to the town centre
- removing underpass infrastructure which is no longer in use
- reducing the size of Brunel Roundabout
- improving the safety of pedestrian/cyclist crossing points
- installation of a Redway link along Buckingham Road/V7
- installing new LED lighting [e.g. under Brunel Bridge]
- improving highway/walkway drainage
- improving signage and wayfinding

WORKING TOGETHER
TO IMPROVE OUR HIGHWAY

Why?

Better links between the train station and the town centre will bring economic benefits, especially when the East West Rail link between Bicester and Bletchley opens.

This is one of a number of projects that the Council is undertaking to regenerate Bletchley.

The Council made improvements to the bus station in 2014. Moreover, Queensway will be opened up to through traffic again in Summer 2016.

When and for how long?

Work is expected to start in January 2016 and will complete in Summer 2016.

Will this mean roadworks?

Yes – there will be some traffic management in place whilst work is carried out in this area, however every effort is being made to keep inconvenience to a minimum.

Where can I find more information?
